

Empowering food systems workers and upholding rights through innovation and collaboration

Session hosted by the Decent Work for Equitable Food Systems Coalition

Wednesday 26 July 2023, 12.30 – 13.25 (CET) – Iran Room

Background and objectives

A critical requirement of food systems transformation is decent work for food systems workers and building agency in the sector is a key pillar to fulfil this requirement. Co-hosted by the Decent Work Coalition for Equitable Food Systems, this event will showcase current work plans, initiatives and implementation successes of diverse actors driving more equitable livelihoods for young people and vulnerable communities. The aim of this session is to establish new connections and entry points for the Coalition to accelerate action at national level and advance equitable food systems globally.

Expected outcomes

This event will showcase current gap analysis, work plans and implementation successes of actors driving more equitable livelihoods for young people and vulnerable communities.

To follow-up on discussions of the event, a summary of event outcomes will be written and published through the UNFSS Stocktake Platform in addition to the collaborating organizations.

The event will establish new connections and entry points for the Coalition to accelerate action at member state level to advance equitable livelihoods.

Moderator

Dr. Jyotsna Puri

International Fund for Agricultural Development

Panellists (to be confirmed)

Ms. Reema Nanavaty

Self Employed Women's Association

TBD

Mexican government

Mr. Elvis Beytullayev

International Labour Organisation

Ms. Elizabeth Mwende

Youth Representative, Stakeholder Engagement and Networking Advisory (SENA) Group, UN Food System Summit

Mr. Berry Marttin

Rabobank

Programme

12:30 Introduction

12:40 Video

12:45 Panel discussion

13:15 Q&A